RAISING AN ARMY IN A HURRY

A QUIET Sunday with the magazines gives the reader an opportunity to observe the train of the world's thought as well as to become satiated with its unceasing fiction. In view of the several recent narrow margins by which the United States has escaped embroilment in the world war, it is but natural that many students should devote thought to the tactics which should be adopted by this government to preserve the happy medium of preparedness for any eventuality without actually committing itself to militarism.

There is excellent argument in favor of getting in a position to raise an army of at least a million men within a period not to exceed thirty days, while the cost of preparedness must be kept at the lowest possible sum and as few people as possible be withdrawn from the occupations of peace during the time that this army is unnecessary. It occurs to the Bonanza that the system in vogue with reference to Tonopah is one that should be followed throughout the United States. Here we have an organization known as the Tonopah National Rifle club, membership in which does not entail the necessity of enlistment should there come a call to arms, but it is assured that practically all the members would respond if their services were needed. The government renders assistance to this club, but it should do more than merely furnish arms. There should also be a reasonable amount of ammunition provided, together with the services of a regular army officer, who would give instruction in military tactics as well as in marksmanship. This would give a pleasant deviation from the rather monotonous occupation of always shooting at a target at meetings of the club. Manhattan has a similar organization, while Goldfield and other towns in this portion of the state could organize and the services of the regular army officer could be distributed among a number of clubs, whose days of meeting could be arranged to suit his convenience.

The club should be made so attractive that care could be used in election of candidates for membership, selecting only those who would be able to pass the examination for entrance into the army. The initiation fees and dues should also be rendered nominal. If this system were to be carried out throughout the United States there would be no need to increase the standing army in time of peace, but there would be such preparedness on the part of the people that an army of skilled men could be quickly mobilized and the harrowing experience of the Spanish war would be obviated. This, however, would leave the matter of equipment of a large army on short notice another phase of the problem not so easily worked out.

LET'S CO-OPERATE AND ASSASSINATE

TEN cents—one dime—would have been dropped into the contribution box yesterday morning by a Tonopah but for one untoward incident. His beauty sleep was marred and his disposition to attend divine service was wrecked by a miserable specimen of the musca domestica that alighted on his nose in rapid succession and when not so engaged was continuously buzzing around his starboard ear. The ten cents that would otherwise have gone to clothe, feed and educate the heathen at home and in Washoe county was expended on a slatter. If the fly returns next Sunday morning the Lord will be shy another ten cent piece and some sticky fly paper will be bought with the short bit. This is a hint to the pulpits of Tonopah to form a combination against the pesky insects and preach for their extermination. "Doc" Richards, in your position as health officer, you are also requested to join in the crusade. If you would scrape some of the remaining fragments of the odoriferous tarvin, which the commissioners indulged in as an expensive luxury, from the streets which they injured and place them in cesspools and uncovered garbage cans about the city, the stench would offend the olfactory nerves of even the filth loving fly and he might be induced to depart. At all events let the medico, the sky pilots and the copy grinders get together on this proposition and invite the entire community to follow suit, so that Tonopah may become known as the flyless city.

SUGGESTION ANENT BOXING CONTESTS

THAT appears to be a very reasonable and satisfactory manner of determining victors in boxing contests in Tonopah has been suggested to the Bonanza, in view of the recent unpleasantnesses that have occurred here in the declaration of winners. It is suggested that three judges be selected, all of whom shall be reputable citizens and none having any money bet on the outcome. They will sit apart and have no communication with each other. The referee will officiate as usual but not in choosing the victor. In case there is no knock-out or elevating the sponge, the judges will each write the name of the one they consider having the advantage and the majority shall decide. This will serve to bridge over the difficulties and unpleasantnesses that have arisen between Tonopah people and the Goldfield visitors to the boxing contests.

TARIFF REVENUE OUT

THE decision of the customs court that the "5 per cent differential" clause of the Underwood tariff, providing a rebate of duties on merchandise carried in American bottoms, is valid, but that the same rebate must be given where the merchandise was carried in the vessel of any "favored nation," insures a revision of the tariff.

About all the nations having ships are "favored" under existing treaties. Hence the decision practically means a horizontal cut of 5 per cent on all duties. How the court arrived at such a conclusion is as mysterious as how the treasury department came to suspend the differential clause on account of the "favored nation" treaties in the first place. It is possible that the decision will be reversed by the supreme court of the United States. On the other hand, it may be upheld, and it may be necessary for the treasury to refund something like $15,000,000 in customs heretofore collected.

With the treasury general balance reduced $15,000,000, with the expenditures the greatest in the history of the government with the war tax and the income tax failing to meet expectations, and with the lopping off of millions in duties on sugar in prospect, the nation's fiscal affairs were in a bad way before this decision. It will be necessary to devise some way of raising immediate revenue and it is almost certain that the tariff will be revised. It is safe to conjecture that the sugar schedule will be changed. In fact, the probability in that particular revision was seen several months ago. The state of the treasury will be the excuse, but other motives will be mingled. Although stoutly insisting that a protective tariff is unconstitutional, our Democratic friends, when they do reopen the tariff, will not go out of the way to prevent any schedule furnishing incidental protection.

IF THEY SHIRK, TURN THEM OUT

WHEN congress convenes in regular session next December it will have before it a comprehensive report and recommendation upon the military policy and establishment of the United States. It will also have the usual report of the board of admirals.—Chicago Tribune.

If the sixty-fourth congress shirks its duty to the country as the last congress shirked, every member who proves a traitor to his country should be a marked man. The American public is in no mood to forgive the usual Democratic blundering which has disgraced the nation in the elements of national defence.

SPONGES

The tendency of sponges is toward scarcity and higher prices. This is due to the fact that sponge fishing is a precarious business and the product limited.

All of our sponges are carefully selected and you'll find them exceptional values.

We have large unbleached sponges, bleached bath sponges, vegetable sponges or loofahs, Russian rubber sponges and an endless variety of small sponges for all uses.
